IN THE VILLAGE

BYRON WILLIAMS

YEARS ago I used to hang around the council chambers of civic bodies and report the proceedings of these august gentlemen. The motto to "God Bless Our Home," did not always hang upon these walls and none gave the admonition that "I am Godlike for brethren to dwell in unity," or words to that effect. But in those days controversy meant a good story—and I made no philosophical observations upon the conduct of aldermen.

In after years lacking excitement, I started a daily newspaper and satiated myself with the active life. Being satiated and still unemployed, I came to Chicago to test my wings upon a sea of smoke. They bore me up, but the smoke hurt my eyes. Then I conceived the heaven-sent idea that to live in the country and work in the city should counterbalance both the love of the country and the enchantment of the city. I built a home with a lake on one side where the waters lapped, and a meadow on the other where the meadowlarks lilted and sang their songs of joy. The other two sides I left to the hills and the woods—and the sky above was pure and clear.

And now into this Eden has crept the serpent. The village wants some active headlight to do its job of mayoring. We are exceedingly short of mayoralty timber out in our town. So short that a large delegation of citizens are camping on my doorstep and demanding in burning words, punctuated with red fire, that I take up the toga virilis in its most gilded form and give a little exhibition of "Sideshow as I Would Fix 'Em," or "How to Heal a Hole in the Street."

Go away, ho! polio, and let me alone! I want to write poetry and stories, weed in my sweet-peas and teach a bull dog how to be happy though bob-tailed!

Go away! I leave me, while my wife still has some little glimmer of respect for me! Leave me, while I may buy a new suit of clothes or a new hat without someone winking at my back and shaping their mouths to say "GRAFT!"

Leave me calm and serene, a non-unity whom nobody worries about, a peaceable citizen who writes his own news once in a while and swaps yarns for sugar and meat!

Leave me behind the lawn mower and the grass shears, content in the simple life. Go away!

But they do not go away! They clamor around my cigars and eat my apples and teach my bull dog political tricks. They tell me I am the man of the hour when I do not want to be the man of the hour. I want to live there always, live there with their respect and their love.

Damn 'em! They sent me a copy of David Harum's "Lessons in Contentment" with pencil marks around the chapter that tells how every man save up an overcoat or a new incubator to help pay the taxes and make the community life better.

"That," said they, "is the spirit that should actuate you in accepting his call. You owe this to the community, etc."

And when I said I'd make the race, they went out and nominated a rival candidate and now they are sitting back on the drygoods boxes and the upholsteries and sipping us!

Go away!

"Time Flies!"
Time flies! It never on the wing. Few men know how to use it. They can't find time for anything! All they can do is lose it.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Oh, I don't know! There's still a class that find there's something to it! Because of misdeeds they have done, All they can do is do it.
—By the Way.

It isn't always easy to marry the right girl for her money.
—It is better to be a lonely bachelor than a henpecked husband.
—Somehow an employer never seems to want a man who is out of a job.
—The greatest trouble about the shell of fame is that no two people can agree on whose name shall be written there.
—The man who makes the best of the worst of it will be as happy as a clam when he makes the best of the best of it.

SAYS HUBBY IS TO STINGY

Oza McConnell Brings action for Divorce.

WILL NOT PAY ALIMONY

Napoleon Shown cited for Ignoring Court Order.

Wife Files Motion, Stating That $100 Allowance Has not Been Paid—Court Hadpenings.

Claiming that her husband was too "stingy" to contribute to her support, Oza L. McConnell, through her attorneys, Copeland and Bartram, filed a petition for divorce from her husband John McConnell, in the common pleas court, Monday afternoon.

The plaintiff alleges in her petition that she was married to the defendant in this city on February 12th, 1931, and that there have been no children as the result of the union. She claims that at the time of their marriage, the defendant was employed as a traveling salesman for a Buffalo house, earning a salary of $800 a year. She declares the defendant in earning from fifteen to eighteen hundred dollars a year. She declares that despite his earning ability, he refused to contribute to her support and about October 1st, 1935, she was compelled to return to her father's home and earn a livelihood by working in a store. The defendant is charged with gross neglect and three years' wilful absence.

The plaintiff asks that the court decree her a divorce, reasonable alimony and restore her to her maiden name, Oza Lingo.

Through his attorneys DeGolley and DeGolley, John McConnell filed an amended petition in the common pleas court Saturday in his suit against the Chicago and Erie railroad.

The plaintiff says, that on December 6th, 1937, because of negligence on the part of the employees of the defendant company, that sparks from a locomotive set fire to certain pasture fields destroying property in the value of $278.16. The plaintiff prays judgment against the defendant for this amount together with interest at the rate of six per cent.

In the divorce suit of Flora B. Shown in the common pleas court, the plaintiff, through her attorneys, Copeland and Bartram, filed a motion, Monday.

The plaintiff says that on March 2nd, 1939, the court allowed her a sum of $100 temporary alimony. She declares that the defendant has failed and refused to pay the amount and moves that he be ordered to appear and cite his reasons why he should not be punished for contempt. The court ordered him to appear at 9 o'clock, Friday morning.

The Mezgar company against Michael H. Murphy, a foreclosure suit which has been pending in the common pleas court for several years, was dismissed Saturday at the request of both parties concerned.

Evergreens Done Brown.
"Did you say that was an evergreen you had outside your window?" he asked dubiously. "It doesn't look so very green."
"No," said she. "I think it's an ever brown. Anyway, it has been like that ever since I got it."—New York Press.

Her Object.
"But why did you lead the man on? Why didn't you give him a rebuff the moment he began trying to flirt with you?"
"I wanted him to make a confession so that I could boast about it to my husband."—Minneapolis Journal.

JIMMIE'S AMBITION.

A school I don't stand very high. 'Cause my department's always bad. The teacher says—I don't know why. If we would move that she'd be glad. I want they was no 'rhythmick. And folks could spell the way they please. I never try to do a trick. But what the teacher always sees.

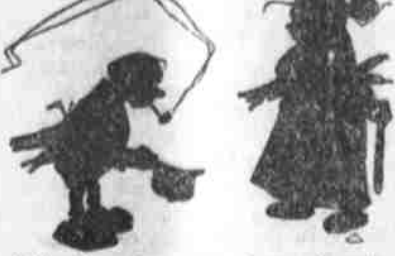

Most every day she keeps me late. For fightin' or for sayin' things. It's awful to have such a fate. Instead of havin' sproutin' wings. I've got to do the best I can. For bein' foolish doesn't pay. I want to be a smarter man. Than me thinks pa is, anyway!

My ridin's horribul, I know. Pa says it looks like chicken tracks. I'm our best football player, though. And champion of the quarterbacks. I want we had no history. That boys would hest to learn at all. They don't get anything on me. When I am playin' basket ball.

They say you've got to know a lot. To be a hero in the stuff. The boy that don't learn much has got. To work for others all his life. So I must do the best I can. And try to have a high brow. I want to be a greater man. Than me thinks pa is, anyway!

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why He Called.

"What! Are you here begging again?"
"No, lady. I have just called as er delegate from de Tramping Toms' association ter notify youse dat if youse don't improve yer cookin' de association will have ter cut youse off its route."—New York World.

Didn't Look Right.
A certain drill sergeant, whose severity made him unpopular with his company, was putting a squad of recruits through the funeral exercise. Opening the ranks so as to admit the passage of the supposed cortege between them, the instructor, by the way of practical explanation, walked slowly down the line formed by the two ranks, saying as he did so:
"Now, I am the corpse. Pay attention!"

Having reached the end of the party, he turned round and regarded them with a scrutinizing eye for a moment or two.

"Your 'ands is right and your 'eads is right, but you 'ave'n't got that look of regret you ought to 'ave!"—Modern Society.

The Mystery Explained.
"Why," we ask of the eminent servant, "why, do you suppose, were the arms of the Venus of Milo broken off?"
"Because," he ventures, "after the sculptor had chiseled a perfect form he was afraid she would try to get herself into a straight front side and back corset!"—Chicago Post.

CLARENCE.

HOPE TO CLOSE DEAL

Marion Men go to Indianapolis to Secure Overland.

OUTCOME IS IN DOUBT

Possible Chance that Marion May Get Plant.

Whole Project Rests on Today's Conference at the Overland Factory—The Party

A committee composed of Messrs. William E. Scofield, Bright Durfee, D. A. Frank George, D. Capeland, James Prendergast, Caleb H. Norris and George Christian Sr., left Marion last evening for Indianapolis, where they will hold a private conference with the officials of the Overland automobile company, regarding the matter of locating the factory in this city.

The committee left Marion prepared to sign contracts and clinch the deal, providing the Overland officials are ready to comply with their former proposition. It is certain that the Toledo deal is not closed and the committee had little trouble in arranging for the desired conference.

There was considerable betting going on in the streets Monday regarding the outcome of the deal. There are many who yet feel assured that Marion will get the auto works and it is much to be hoped that they are correct.

No word was heard from the committee until 3 o'clock Monday evening. Marion will know at least by Tuesday whether or not it has any show of landing in Marion and the present suspense will be much longer.
